the HERALD

Ange,

It's been four or five years since we've first met and we've found out alot about each other. I should probably wait until next year to write this but I figured I could either copy this on to 74's yearbook or think of something else to say. I have a little advice and alot of remenising. Here's the advice: I really feel that I'm the only person who really knows who you are. I know a lot more about you than you think I do. You're a great kid with a wonderful personality, but you don't let anyone see your real self. Don't hide behind the huge facade which you have built up. Be yourself. Be what you are and not what you think others would like you to be. You also have the gift of being able to make friends very easily. Use this gift wisly and you'll go a long way in this world. But remember that it's not the amount of friends you have, its the quality of their friendship that counts. When you have a true friend, be honest with him and never take advantage of your his friendship.

I'll never forget "Grossi" the kid at the composer who didn't like my onkt, ~~and~~ who always wanted to wear my sunglasses, who took my "odors away". Remember these times? The time I rode by your house on my bike waiting for you to come out. The nights we slept over each other's house then went out raiding everyone's gardens. The night we went for a ride in the cop's car. The year that Wayne came over ~~any~~ and the four or five months we forgot about each other. The night you ran away and the series of events which followed. All those Sundays at the beach where I always burned. The night your bike was stolen. The night we went skinny dipping. All those times you scared the shit out of me in the car. The first time I got drunk. The night at Riverside when we got sick. The night we played super sleuth and followed Ann. All those times when we went skiing & I was a pain in the ass about skiing with more than two. All those nights when you were tired and I wouldn't go home. All those boring nights when we asked each other, "what do ya want ta do?" The nights at the hospital. These are events which I'll never forget. They are just some of the times of our growing up together. Thanks for your patience and understanding at the times I need them most. You helped me a great deal with my problems but I feel that I loaded you down with too much. I'm sorry if you were burdened down with my problems because I never meant you to be like that. But those times are over and I've over come them.

THE LEADER 1977

I couldn't have solved them without you, and I am eternally greatful to you. I've changed alot within a couple of months and you know what I mean, But this is one thing which I don't want you to remember. It's in the past now. Don't judge people for what they were. take a good, new look at what they are and then decide.

I think that I'm interested in the medical profession. Thanks for getting me started in the hospital and if you ever want a vasectomy you know who to go to. Good Luck and keep on trucking.

I stayed up late last night
to watch the end of the movie.
It was really a dumb show:
everyone went around speaking his heart.
The people I know don't do that and yet I've known them.

I've known them from their moods —
funny, irritated, sad,
quiet, happy, and loving.
I've known them from what they've given —
a nickname, extra ice cream,
a key chain, two cookbooks, and love.
And I've known them from what they've shared —
a private rendition of the Keebler Cookie song,
peppermints, brand-new sweaters,
a beautiful experience in another place,
free car wash passes, and love.

I watched the end of the movie last night:
it was really a dumb show.
The people I know don't speak their hearts and yet they've shown their love.

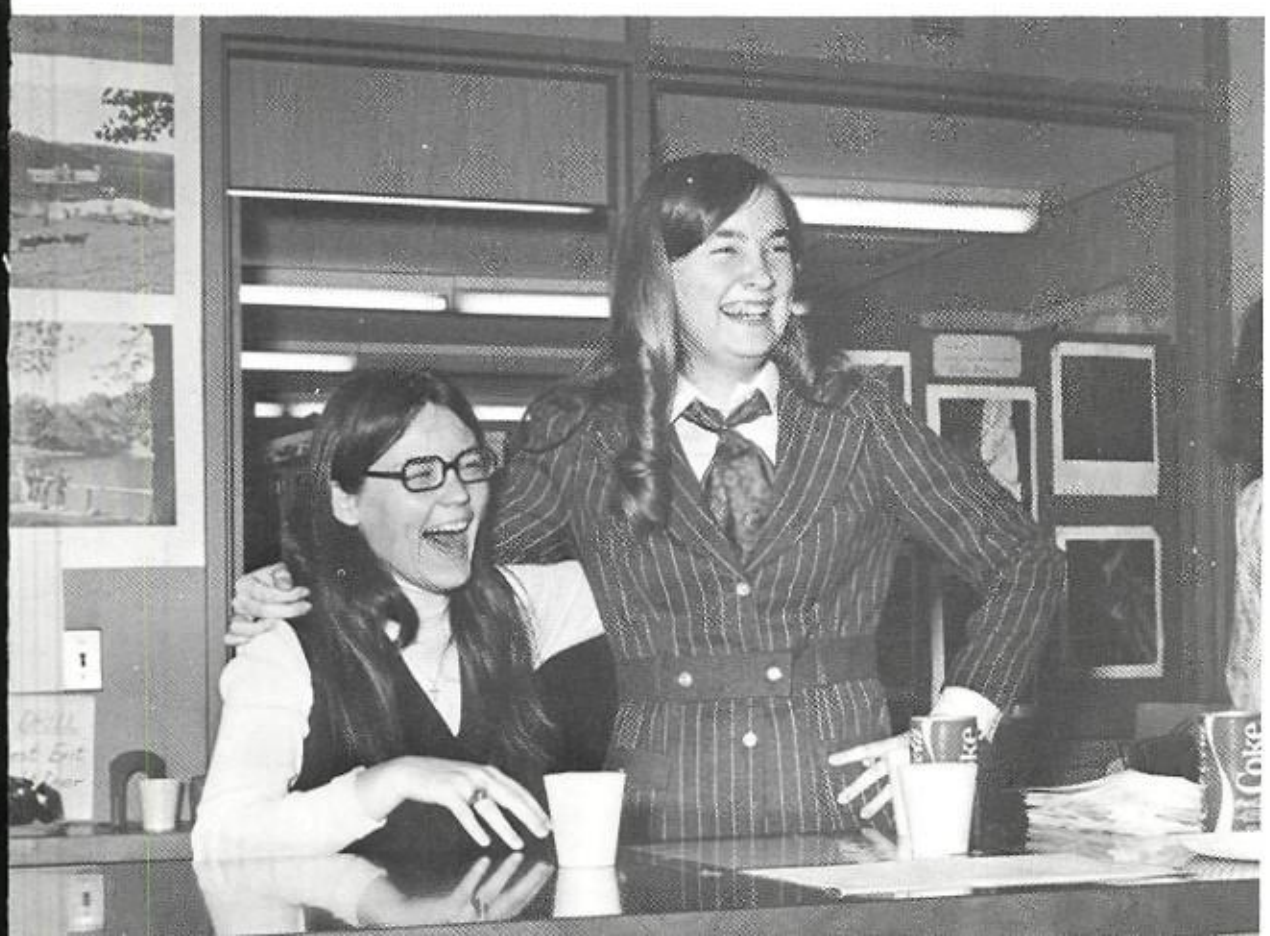
Elise

I got up one morning and I couldn't see
My eyes were closed. It was dark.
I was looking for him but I couldn't find him.
He had run away, hiding in
The greens and yellows of an ugly forest
Holding my sight.

I lived that day and thought I saw
My eyes were open. It wasn't dark.
I thought I found him in the cold shade of the trees

But he slipped away.
All I held were
The faded flowers of my velvety tropical garden.

I didn't get up one morning and then I could see
My eyes were closed. It was light.
I found him where he should be
Not near, not far,



there
A tiny tendril
of the minty vine.
I found growing
within me flourish
and end my vine.

Who's Huong

Huong, Windsor Locks' first full-year exchange student, is from a small village in the Mekong Delta Region of South Vietnam where she attended an all-girl school. In Windsor Locks she has participated in a wide range of activities, such as People Together, Girl Scouts, band, ecology club, and the Herald board. She has shared with us her enthusiasm for activities, her love of music, her smile, her deep concern for others, and her warm, friendly manner.

Huong's reaction to the ceasefire announcement best shows her inner emotions. Shortly after the President's speech she was crying so hard that she was unable to talk. The next day Huong wore a Vietnamese costume to school, despite the cold. She said "Today I freeze. It's worth it." We were all glad to experience with Huong the joy and relief that came with the cease fire.

After graduation Huong will tour part of the United States with other American Field Service students and will then return to Vietnam. We will all remember and miss Huong long after she has returned to her home.

Football

In its first season in the C.V.C., the varsity team surprised such established powers as Simsbury, Rockville, and Glastonbury, and was rarely outclassed despite a 1-8 record. In winning a game in its initial season, the team equalled a feat accomplished only once before in the C.V.C. Prospects are bright for next year as a large number of sophomores and juniors, many with a year's experience, promise to reinforce next year's team. Seniors on this year's team include: Jim Welch, Mike Walsh, Cliff Jubrey, Mark Fearon, John Savino, Mark Senofonte, Steve Grant, Tom Courtney, Bill Wishart, Joe Wolnick, Warren Peichart, Len Pastick, and the tri-captains Guy Cyr, Mike Hillery, and Brian Michalewicz.

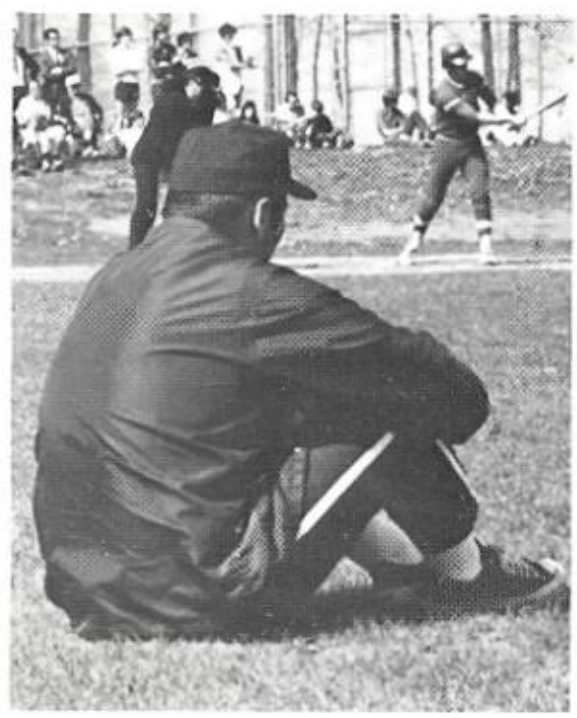
Baseball

This year's team was especially strong in the all-important pitching department. Greg Mitchell and Mark Senofonte were the mainstays and were ably supported by Mike Walsh, Ed Reale, Bob Cressotti, and Perry DiPrato. Joe Flynn and John Basile were among the veterans who supplied the batting punch. Dan Sullivan and Jim McKenna were the coaches of this year's team.



Tennis

Golf

Although the golf and tennis teams are still young, both squads were bolstered by the experience of their seniors. In golf, Glenn Blackburn, Mark White, Glen Bascetta, and John Eames were the nucleus of a very strong team. In tennis, Ron Monzillo, Jim Nussbaum, Doug MacLeod, and Steve Gebhart provided depth to a much-improved team led by Mike Barile and Glenn Prebit.

THE TEAM Top row: (l.-r.): M. Wilkman, S. Gebhart, M. Grabowski, G. Prebit, R. Monzillo, M. Getz, D. MacLeod, J. Nussbaum, Coach Andre Bottom row: A. Livingston, S. Desroches, M. Barile, R. Marcinek

A senior. Very interesting. I'd like to leave my thumbprint, you know? And maybe 30 years from now someone will say,

"Look! a thumbprint....."

"A thumbprint!"

"UGH - how could you be so inhumane?"

"How would you like it if someone erased your footprint from the sands?"

"What?"

"Well? So will you wipe it away, already."

"It's easy. All of us cleaning fanatics are."

"I'd rest with the satisfaction of knowing the joke was on the eraser - who merely recycled my traces by leaving his own."
